Canto. An apartment located in a residential part of the Metropolitan Area in Mexico City.

The architectural programme of the garden includes a conversation pit surrounding a fire pit. A living room typology filled of nostalgia from the 60's made for the so needed gathering and interchange of today. Different textures compose the garden of the house waiting for the patina of time and the growth of new vegetation of endemic species. The latticework of the serpentinous brick fence allows you to see the slope of the land duplicating the size garden.

Inside, a black oak wood casing with brass details is the main element that transforms and covers
